the 1930s, when the height of the Communist movement in America was the subject of the book. The author, who was a Communist himself, wrote with open abandon of the role of the Communist Party in the United States. The book was published by the University of California Press. It was a best-seller and a major contribution to the study of the Communist movement in America. The book was written by a man who was a member of the Communist Party and who was a close associate of the Communist Party in the United States. The book was written by a man who was a member of the Communist Party and who was a close associate of the Communist Party in the United States.

The nation's largest collection of these items is housed in the National Negro Labor Council, 1000 Broadway, New York City. The collection is the result of the efforts of the National Negro Labor Council, which was organized in 1931 by Dr. Carter G. Woodson, a leading authority on the history of the Negro people in America.
